

PATIENT AUTHORIZATION

1. As a center committed to providing the most up-to-date, effective reproductive treatment options for our patients, the physicians and embryologists at Georgia Reproductive Specialists are often involved in research projects that contribute to advances in the field of reproductive endocrinology.

In some cases, significant data associated with an individual patient's care may be included in a research publication or medical textbook though the information is always presented in an anonymous and confidential manner.

I understand that as a patient at Georgia Reproductive Specialists the results of my care may be included in research publications or textbooks but in no way will I be personally identified and this will not affect my course of treatment in any way.
